HOW TO PLAY MISSISSIPPI STUD POKER

Mississippi Stud is based on the traditional game of Five Card Stud Poker. However, instead of playing against a dealer, players compete against a predefined pay table.

Using a standard 52-card deck, the objective of the game is to form the best possible five-card poker hand by combining two personal (hole) cards with three community cards. If the final hand qualifies as a winning hand, the player is paid in accordance with the pay table.

To begin a round of play, the player must place an Ante wager in the designated Ante area on the table layout. An optional 3 Card Bonus side wager may also be placed at this time.

After the initial deal, the player receives two hole cards. The player may then choose to either fold or place a 3rd Street wager equal to one, two, or three times the Ante wager. Once all players have made their decision, the dealer reveals the first community card.

The player may then choose to fold or place a 4th Street wager equal to one, two, or three times the Ante wager. After all decisions are made, the dealer reveals the second community card.

The player may then choose to fold or place a 5th Street wager equal to one, two, or three times the Ante wager. Once all decisions are made, the dealer reveals the third and final community card.

The dealer then reveals each player's hand to determine the outcome of the wagers.

ANTE, 3RD STREET, 4TH STREET AND 5TH STREET WAGERS

These wagers will:

- Win if the final hand contains a pair of Jacks or higher
- Lose if the final hand contains a single pair of Fives or lower
- Push if the final hand contains a single pair of Sixes through Tens
- Lose if the player folds at any stage

All winning wagers are paid according to the pay table.

THE ODDS OF WINNING

The house edge for Mississippi Stud Poker is approximately 4.91% based on the Ante wager only, and approximately 1.37% on the total wager when played using optimal strategy.

3 CARD BONUS

This optional additional wager applies only to the three community cards and is independent of the player's main game wagers. Where provided on the table layout, the wager must be placed before the initial deal and within the displayed minimum and maximum limits. Once placed, the wager remains in play even if the player elects to fold during the round. The wager wins if the three community cards form a poker hand of a pair or higher, and loses if the hand ranks lower than a pair.

All winning wagers are paid according to the pay table.
